Open in a rare, repeated quest presented as a fortune and two unspeakable quests. Gelkis Clan Centaur[2] Diminish your reputation with the Magram Clan Centaur, a variety of non-repeatable quest rewards. Mob keepers kill time in Old Hillsbrad and black Morass case It comes to new content. If you use the Burning Crusades as an example, there's no reputation that gives you an edge in Outland or will accelerate you further. From this example, I don't think the current Argent Dawn group will be used again for Northrend, see the original post referencing patch changes/patches 4.0.1 (12-Oct-2010): How to gain fame with your group by donating silk wool Mageweave and Runecloth removed Patch 3.3.0 (08-Dec. 2009): Fame has been sped up by about 30% for a number of groups: Argent Crusades, Vanguard Alliance, Horde Expedition, Kirin Tor, Knights of the Ebon Blade, Sons of Hodir, Wymrest Accord Patch 3.0.8 (2009-01-20): The award-winning reputation for killing mobs is no longer automatically diminished. This means that minor mobs will continue to give full reputation for killing for most cases in the game (level 70 [sic] creatures in Stratholme, for example, will continue to reward full agents to 80 level players who want to add their Argent Dawn group) patch 2.4.0 (25-Mar-2008): Bugs are fixed, which are not discounted with flightmasters and patch repairs. - (2007): Seller discount: all sellers, flightmasters, and repairs with joint group now offer discounts at all higher levels than neutral. (Friendly: 5%, Honorable: 10%, Respect: 15%, Noble: 20%) Previously with a 10% flat discount starting at Honor Patch 2.3.0 (Nov 13, 2007): Requirements for hero keys have been reduced to honor. Previously, it was necessary to be respectful. Patch 1.7.0 (13-Sep-2005): Reputational gains given to players in alliances, Horde, or steamwhedde cartel groups directly will now line up to the subscriber group through the middle of the noble reputation level. Patch 1.3.0 (07-Mar-2005): Players are under mental control through reputational changes due to the killing of controlled players and not the reputation changes themselves.
